REPORTS OF INSPECTION OF THE FIELD JURISDICTIONS OF THE
OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS
1873-1900

On the 60 rolls of this microfilm publication are reproduced inspection reports from the records of the Office of Indian Affairs, 1873-80, and the Indian Division of the Office of the Secretary of the Interior, 1880-1900. These reports were prepared by inspectors for the Indian Service and submitted to the Secretary of the Interior. The reports for the period 1873-80 were maintained by the Bureau of Indian Affairs (known as the Office of Indian Affairs before 1947) in a segregated collection. Those reports covering the period 1881-1900, but not in the segregated collection, generally were filed with letters received in the Indian Division, Office of the Secretary of the Interior.

History and Organization

Inspectors for the Indian Service were first appointed July 1, 1873, under the provision of an act of February 14, 1873 (17 Stat. 463). Until March 25, 1880, inspectors were responsible to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. After that date, inspectors came under the supervision of the Secretary of the Interior. This procedural change was necessary because the 1873 act required inspectors to report to the President. Reporting to the Secretary of the Interior was, in effect, the same as reporting to the President.

The 1873 act also provided for the appointment of five Indian inspectors, one for each of five geographical inspection divisions. Appointments were made by the President for 4-year terms, and each inspector was paid $3,000 a year and traveling expenses. By law, each agency was visited by an inspector at least once a year, preferably twice a year by alternate inspectors. The inspectors investigated fully all matters pertaining to the conditions of the Indians and the extent to which they adopted white civilization, reservation boundaries, the use of reservation lands, the state of industry (usually the percentage of farming and cattle grazing by Government employees and Indians), the character and abilities of the agent and other employees, school conditions, the status of agency fiscal records, and enforcement or violation of the law.

During the 1890's many inspection reports were submitted on printed forms showing the names and titles of employees at the agency; their residence, age, sex, and rate of compensation; the nature and extent of services performed; and comments on character, education, personal habits, and qualifications or fitness for the position. Other topics covered in the written reports include the health of the Indians; the receipt of rations; the removal and treatment of Indians by agents and other officials; traders' dealings with Indians; Indian courts; building repairs; conditions of dormitories, kitchens, and dining rooms; the water supply; fire protection; and sanitation and drainage. Special reports responding to directives from the Secretary of the Interior were not uncommon. These reports concerned a wide variety of subjects but were generally related to charges or claims made by individuals against agents or employees, or changes in personnel at agencies. Inspectors could suspend superintendents, agents, or other employees and designate a temporary replacement subject to approval by the President. Inspectors also were authorized to examine all agency books, papers, and vouchers and to administer oaths for taking testimony from agency employees. Often the inspector wrote a separate report for an agency and for each of its day schools and mailed them as one unit to the Secretary. When the reports were received, clerks at the Interior Department registered each one as a separate item.

Records and Remarks

To facilitate the use of this publication, the reports from the records of the Office of Indian Affairs and those from the Indian Division, Office of the Secretary of the Interior, have been consolidated. They are arranged alphabetically by Indian agency, superintendency, or school and thereunder chronologically by date of document. In most cases the Secretary of the Interior referred the reports to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs for his information. Consequently, pages of many reports show two stamped register numbers: one number for the Indian Division, Office of the Secretary of the Interior; the other for the Office of Indian Affairs. The bulk of the inspection reports, 1880-1900; were filed with the records of the Office of the Secretary of the Interior, Indian Division, letters received, 1849-1907. Some reports (less than 10 percent) were located in the records of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, letters received, 1881-1907. These reports were referred to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs but were not returned to the Secretary.

During the 1873-80 period the Indian Office maintained a register of the inspection reports and related letters. The entries in the register were arranged by report number assigned alphabetically by surname of inspector and thereunder chronologically by date of receipt. Many of the reports were removed from the segregated collection of inspection reports and placed with other letters received concerning the jurisdictions to which they pertained. Because these documents have been reproduced as part of National Archives and Records Service (NARS) microfilm publication Letters Received by the Office of Indian Affairs, 1824-1881, M234, they were not reassembled for this publication. However, all related letters that were filed with the segregated inspection reports have been filmed in this publication. The related letters concern instructions, estimates, accounts, travel, and other administrative matters. Many of these documents were filed under "Miscellaneous."

The Indian Division of the Office of the Secretary of the Interior also maintained two separate volumes of control documents, a register and an index, for inspection reports. A register, 1883-1900, is arranged by name of agency or school in a geographical pattern corresponding roughly to the five designated inspection divisions. An index listing the reports received during 1880-93 is arranged alphabetically, with entries for inspectors and jurisdictions. The discovery of many unregistered inspection reports indicates that neither volume was comprehensive in its coverage. Also among the records of the Indian Division are 11 press copy volumes of synopses of inspectors' reports, 1882-94. A synopsis usually accompanied the inspection report when it was referred to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

Because of their limited value to this publication, the two registers and the index mentioned previously were not microfilmed. As a substitute for these volumes, the NARS staff compiled two comprehensive lists: a list of inspectors and the periods of their service (page 5), arranged alphabetically by surname; a list of inspection reports, registered and unregistered (beginning on page 7), arranged in the order in which they were microfilmed.

The inspection reports originating during 1873-80 usually consist of one document, the basic report, which was submitted by the inspector to the Commissioner concerning a specific Indian reservation. Many of the inspection reports that were submitted to the Secretary of the Interior after 1880 were bulky, often consisting of the basic report and several enclosures. A typical sequence of documents in an inspection report file is as follows: the letter returning the report to the Secretary of the Interior from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, the endorsement page, the synopsis of the report prepared in the Indian Division, the basic report, numbered or lettered exhibits, and miscellaneous materials. Not all of these items are contained in each inspection file. Sometimes only the synopsis of a report is in the file. In addition to the aforementioned items, special reports may include a number of affidavits and transcripts of testimony from witnesses. During the course of business, enclosures occasionally were separated from the basic reports, with the result that a few enclosures have not been found. In some instances, pages were misnumbered. In other instances, some maps and newspaper clippings mentioned in letters or in endorsements have not been located.

Related Records

Additional information concerning the inspectors' work for the period covered by this publication may be found in the correspondence files of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and the Secretary of the Interior. As mentioned before, many of the early inspection reports are reproduced in NARS microfilm publication M234. Letters to the inspectors may be found in Letters Sent by the Office of Indian Affairs, 1824-1881, M21, and in Letters Sent by the Indian Division of the Office of the Secretary of the Interior, 1849-1903, M606.

The inspection reports and related documents reproduced in this publication are from Records of the Office of the Secretary of the Interior, Record Group 48, and Records of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Record Group 75. Inspection reports for the post-1900 period are available in both record groups, but they have not been reproduced in this publication. The post-1900 reports in Record Group 48 cover the years 1901-28; those in Record Group 75 cover the years 1909-40.

Samella T. Anderson wrote this introduction and arranged the records for filming. Thomas Whitfield was the editor.
